

Learning a Foreign Language

Task 2: Learning More Languages Today Than In The Past

Activity 1: Listening

Welcome to a practice listening for the ISE 1, listening task 2.

You are going to hear a short talk about learning languages today. You will hear the talk twice. The first time, just listen. Then I'll ask you to tell me in a few words what the speaker is talking about. Are you ready?

The task will play once

Now tell me in a few words what the talk was about.

Give the candidate some blank paper

Now listen to the talk again. Write down some notes about what you hear if you want to. Then I'll ask you to tell me six pieces of information about learning languages today. Are you ready?

Now tell six pieces of information about learning languages today.

Now let's go over the potential questions. Remember, the examiner can ask you up to 4 additional questions after you say the six pieces of information that you heard.

This is the end of listening task 2.

Audio Script

You have to know that learning languages in the past was more challenging than it is today because of a variety of reasons. One reason is that learning a language was more expensive in the past in order to get material than it is today. Nowadays, if you want to learn a language, you'll likely find many low cost and free resources today on the internet. With the coming of the internet, many things have happened today. Before teachers had limited resources and were using boring methods, but now they need to and are able to find interesting and fun material to help their students learn. Also, the world is more global now, and students are able to have more contact with native teachers. In the past, this might not have been possible for many and the students lacked immersion, so they could not improve their speaking and listening skills as easily. These days, teachers are taught these skills better too, and along with that they must use methods that are more interactive and fun, in which students prefer to learn with, so they are motivated to learn languages better. Students also find out why learning is important, like for traveling, finishing their university degree and finding a job. This encourages them to learn better because they know it will help them in their future. If students want to improve their language abilities these days, they have many ways to do it than students of the past. For example, online or in class.
